The New Methodist Church.

Mr. Jacobus, of Jacobus & Weismann, architects, Allentown, Pa., submitted to the trustees of the Methodist Church on Tuesday, a set of plans for the new church building to be erected on the corner of Mulberry and Wilson streets. The trustees were very much pleased with the plans and accepted them after making a few alterations, relative to the height of the steeple and the design of the roof.

Mr. Jacobus drew the plans for the Methodist Church at Catonsville, Pa., which was Mr. Rorer's former charge before coming to Bristol.

The building will be constructed of stone and with stone trimmings, and will extend 67 feet on Mulberry street by 115 feet on Wilson. The main entrance door will be 75 feet wide, with the entrance there by large door on the corner of the street; the pulpit will be located on the side next to the parsonage. The room will have a seating capacity of 600. The Sunday School room in the rear, has a small gallery on three sides and will contain about 400. To the right of this room is the infant class headquarters which will contain 180, and on the left, next to Wilson street, are three smaller rooms, the center one to be used for a library and the other two as class rooms.

All of these rooms can be thrown into one large audience room with a seating capacity of 1200, by dropping a row of sliding doors into the ceiling. Upstairs over the Sunday School part will be two or three more rooms to be used for the minister's study, etc.

The building will be one of the handsomest structures in the town and will cost in the neighborhood of $25,000. The construction work will be begun in four or five weeks.

The Ladies Mite Society are also having the parsonage entirely overhauled and fixing up the grounds generally.

The score is as follows:

	B.	R.	E.	A.
W. Allen, R.	1	2	1	0

INSURANCE.

During the month of August while the pastor is away upon his annual vacation, the ordering church services will be in charge of the Epworth League and Wesleyan Brotherhood. Although the matter has not yet been definitely decided, still the presumption is that the Twilight service will be held a little later and thus made to take the place of the regular church service. The lawn will be adequately lighted, eloquent speakers will be in attendance, extra efforts will be put forth by the official brethren of the respective organizations and judging from present observation the citizens of Bristol will not be required to travel to Ocean Grove to attend a Camp meeting service, but will be favored with the accompaniment at home.

On Sunday evening next, the meeting will be addressed by Rev. Forrest E. Dager, Vice President of Temple Church and Pastor of Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church, of Kensington, Philadelphia. As Mr. Dager's time will be somewhat limited owing to another engagement on the same evening, the order of exercises will be changed so that he can enter into his discourse immediately after the opening of the service. It is therefore imperative that all who desire to hear him come early, as the meeting will commence promptly on time. X. Y. Z.

Nobility Else is Fighting.

The talk of "compromise" which the Quakers have been indulging in since his disavowal of the war in the county since his late week, is wasted vaporing. It comes too late. When Quays rushed down from Beaver to Harrisburg in answer to the call of Andrews and made an alliance with the Democrats in the Legislature to defeat the appointment to which the members were sworn and the party pledged, he declared war on the whole Republican party. There was the time to compromise, by letting the caucus of Republican members agree and decide, as it has always been the party custom to do, and must be if the Republican party is to have any existence except as a convenient tool for him and his subservient cronies who make their living out of it. When his followers belied the party caucus and went into partnership with the Democrats to defeat appointment, and he followed it with a declaration of war on the Republican organization, and took up the Republican cause, he started on a path from which the only way out for him is to back out. If he will out lose from his Democratic allies, call off his Democratic newspapers which are abusing and vilifying Republicans, and let Republicans be his friends without insisting that they must be his servants, the situation will compromise itself.

Nobody else is calling him names and attempting to discredit the Republican organization and tear up the Republican flag, and, plain, every-day Republicans are getting very tired of his daily tirades of abuse aimed at the very men who, until a few months ago, he was eager to call his most intimate friends.

Hermione Lodge, No. 109, Knights of Pythias.

The term report of Hermione Lodge, No. 109, K. of P., for the six months ending June 3rd, is in many respects a remarkable one and is a just cause for pride with its officers and members. This lodge has a larger number of members and a greater amount of invested funds than ever before. There are as well as some other things prove conclusively that this is the most prosperous period of its existence. The following are a few extracts from the report: Total number of members 240; receipts from all sources, $2,772.33; expenditures, including investments, $2,332.57; amount paid for relief, $1,000.75; present worth of lodge, $14,170.28. At the meeting of Fidelity Council.

At the meeting of Fidelity Council, No. 21, Jr. O. U. A. M., held on Thursday evening last, one candidate was elected to membership and one application for reinstatement received. The Guards were granted permission to attend the annual picnic of the order, to be held at Parkland, Monday, August 6th. It is a source of much regret that action in the matter was not taken at an earlier date so that the Guards could have had ample time to make preparation for and enter into the competitive drills, which are a very important feature of that occasion.

Some members of the G. A. R. of Bristol, who were present at the 27th which is Grand Army day, to attend the meetings there, Governor Hastings is expected to be present on that day, besides several prominent speakers.

Fisher's Appeal to Gilkeson.

This morning's Doylestown Democrat contains this interesting bit of political news that explains the animus of General Fisher's attack upon Chairman Gilkeson: "The political sensation yesterday was the disclosure made by a prominent down county Republican, who was an active supporter of Mr. Gilkeson, that a Democrat, Fisher, who met him and drew him out on the Republican National flag, he said: 'The plan to turn down both Gilkeson and Quay is all right as far as it goes, but it ought to go a step farther and provide for relieving the Republicans of Bucks county of such a pestiferous nuisance as Fisher. Why,' said he, 'not three months ago Fisher was on his knees begging Gilkeson to get him one of the appointments to the new Superior Court. He not only asked this but whined and begged of Gilkeson to help him, saying he would let by-gones be bygones.' 'You are not speaking seriously?' the reporter asked. 'I was never more in earnest,' said the gentleman. 'What I am telling you is no invention. The correspondence is in black and white. General Fisher himself told it, or it might never have been known.' 'When I read Fisher's letter in the Republican,' this down county man continued, 'abusing Gilkeson for his party recalcitancy, with my knowledge of his letter to Gilkeson, I became utterly disgusted with his cant. Yes, let us turn down not only Quay, but Gilkeson and Fisher too. We have had his fighting Fisher's willingness to bow the knee to Gilkeson for an office, and last year we had his combining together, with what result? Hendricks! He is the deliverance of the combined labors of Gilkeson and Fisher. Fisher! Haven't the Republican party had enough of them? Turn 'em all down, I say.' The reporter investigated the charges of the down county Republican, and ascertained beyond question that General Fisher did beg Mr. Gilkeson to have him appointed one of the Superior Court Judges. The letters are still in existence, and may be brought to light before the fight is over.

A Trolley "Tunnel."

A feature of many of the trolley parties now is "going through the tunnel." There are no tunnels, of course, but on the way to Willow Grove or wherever it may be at some obscure point the conductor shouts out "tunnel" and detaches his pole, which immediately throws everything into darkness. Then to carry out the fun some of the young men smack their lips on their hands giving the effect of osculatory salutes all over the car. There is a climax when the conductor finally announces "last tunnel before the end of the route." It is all made believe, and like many another mad freak on these trips, which give so much pleasure to thousands amidst the young people who take part, Philadelphia Times.

OUR PHILADELPHIA LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, July 25, 1895.—The deal by which two hundred and fifty-eight miles of railway involving an invested capital of $60,000,000 are to be consolidated under one management is one of the biggest transactions ever made in the passenger railway business, and it illustrates to what an extent this branch of transportation has developed.

THE CAPITAL INVOLVED.

The capital involved is one-half as great as the capital stock of the Pennsylvania Railroad and it is one-half greater than that of the Reading Railroad. In addition to the money already expended, it is proposed to raise $30,000,000 more, which will be the amount of the capital stock of the new company organized to control the whole. This, with trust certificates, which are to be issued, will raise the total capitalization of the new and old companies to a figure exceeding $100,000,000.

THE COMPANIES WHICH WILL UNITE.

The companies which will unite are the Philadelphia Traction Company, the People's Traction Company and the Electric Traction Company. For some time the People's and Electric Companies have been transferring passengers to each other's lines for a single fare, and so far the public is concerned the large increase of traffic to the city has been benefited by the passengers and gave a large increase of traffic to the city. The increase was at the expense of the Philadelphia Traction Company, and because this big corporation suffered a treaty of peace has been agreed upon. The development of the Philadelphia Traction Company has been largely the work of Peter A. B. Widener, and however adverse to public interests he may have been it cannot be denied that he has made a successful and plucky manager for the stockholders. There was a most critical time during the late depression when the securities of this powerful corporation might have been dumped upon the market by the banks, and the fortune, or rather savings, of many small investors would have been swept away. It was then that Mr. Widener and his associate, William L. Atkins, stepped forward and pledged their individual securities and bonds for a million dollars. They saved the day, and with the return of more prosperous Philadelphia Traction stock advanced in value.

THE NEW DEAL.

By the new deal Mr. Widener will be succeeded by John Lecher Welsh, a man who possibly has not his equal in this city as a financier. He is to Philadelphia what Pierpont Morgan is to New York, and the fact that such a man will devote his time to street railways is another indication of the great proportions the business has attained. Last year the companies named carried nearly 200,000,000 passengers.

ALL THIS CENTRALIZATION IS LEADING ON TO ONE END.

All this centralization is leading on to one end, and that is the ownership of the railways by the municipality. The consolidation of all the lines will give less for their money in the way of transportation than they ever obtained before. The time will be hastened when the people will demand that the city own and operate the roads which occupy the public highways. F. D. M.

OLD AGE.

Every one is familiar with the shrunken look of the aged—the wrinkled face, the hunched back and the bowed form. The shrinkage, of which these are but the outward signs, affects the entire muscular system. Hence the changed tone of the voice and the weakened action of all the bodily organs. No old man is equal to the muscular effort of his earlier years, and those who refuse to recognize this fact are sure to do themselves harm. But other tissues as well as the muscular undergo shrinkage. Thus the cartilaginous cushion between the joints of the spine contracts and at the same time becomes more calcareous and unyielding. The result is that the spine loses its suppleness and elasticity, and is more liable to harm from concussion. The person also becomes appreciably shorter. The bones undergo a similar change, and not only fracture more readily, but are less easily healed. Old persons need to be specially on their guard against falling so as to break the thigh-bone, as the fall of fracture is almost sure to be at the narrow neck, where the tendency to heal is least. When the teeth are lost by age, the shrinkage of the jaw narrows the canals through which important nerves pass, thus pressing and irritating the nerve, and giving rise to almost insupportable neuralgia. The nerves themselves are subject to the same shrinkage, so that in old age there is a lessening of nervous sensibility. It follows that bearing, sight, taste and appetite lose somewhat of their keenness. Old age tells also upon the brain itself. It no longer fills the skull, and the vacant spaces are filled with water. Its substance becomes more compact and tough; in some rare cases it condenses into a leather-like substance, and the man is reduced to a condition of idiocy. But in all cases, mentality is lessened. Men like Gladstone seem to be exceptions, but such are he are born for a hundred years. Their old age comes later. Some old persons are apparently as capable as ever, but then only in certain lines where they have the advantage of earlier habits and all previous accumulations. Their versatility, their power to turn effectively in other directions, to train themselves to new intellectual habits, is far from what it once was. It is often the case, and sometimes it is a source of trouble, that an old man does not perceive his intellectual shrinkage as clearly as others see it. But there is no old line at fifty, even for the minister. No man who takes care of himself begins to be old before he is seventy.

THE PENSION DEPARTMENT.

The Pension Department has granted an original pension to Joseph M. Read, of Bristol, and "reissued" pensions to John W. Morgan, Tullytown; Torbert Ganges and John Gordon, of Morrisville.

SENATOR QUAY IS SENDING A NUMBER OF LETTERS TO PEOPLE IN THIS COUNTY.

Senator Quay is sending a number of letters to people in this county asking them to support his claim at the County Convention, next Monday. The Senator is a good fighter, but he is going to get left this time. Hugh Henderson, a Philadelphia grocer, owning property in Bucks county, has made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors to Israel Hecht, of Philadelphia, a real estate broker in that city.
